Introduction

Canada is a safe, friendly and developed English-speaking nation. Declared by the UN National Survey to be one of the best countries in the world, the beauty of Canada's natural environment is breathtaking. It encompasses a vast array of diverse landscapes, from ocean beaches to forest, mountainous regions and snowfields. Canada invests a higher-level of funding into its education system than many other countries, resulting in outstanding learning environments. Perhaps it is for this reason that Canadian degrees are internationally recognized and respected. This results in further employment and career opportunities for graduates. In addition to these significant advantages, the fees for Canada's reputed universities and courses are reasonable and offer students a more affordable option for quality education.

Education

Canada's high-quality learning institutions are diverse and focus on different forms of education, including both vocational and academic disciplines. Students can choose from 92 universities and 175 colleges country-wide, which offer admissions in January, May and September annually. However, these significant benefits mean Canada is a popular destination, and it maintains a successful education system with both funding and strict institution entry requirements. This further enhances the learning environment for students studying in this prosperous and beautiful country.
